CLARESHOLM LOCAL NEWS

A special good program at the Rex for Fair dates.

What about your entries for the Fair? July 29 and 30 is not far off.

Mrs. Reinecke has returned after spending several months in the east.

Mrs. S. H. Price of High River has been visiting friends here for the past week.

H. Wannamaker and family are leaving for Windermere Lake B. C. on Monday next.

The Alberta Sunshine Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Grobe on Wednesday afternoon, July 21, at 2:30 o'clock.

The degree team of Beaver Lodge No. 27, Stavelly, will exemplify the second degree in Foothills Lodge, Clareholm, on next Monday night. The local lodge has two candidates for this degree.

Earl John, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dow, died on Wednesday. The funeral took place on Friday. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the parents in their bereavement.

Quite inadvertently, the names of the appointees to two important offices of Foothills Lodge 1, O. O. F., were omitted from the list published in our last issue, viz: J. A. Harrison, Warden, and H. Sprague, Conductor.

Mr. H. V. F. Jones, Assistant General Manager of the Canadian National of Commerce, Toronto, passed through Clareholm on the 3rd inst. on his way from Clareholm to Calgary. During the trip, he spent half an hour with Mr. Shearer, local manager of the bank.

Presented at the recital of pupils of Alberta College north on Friday evening, a singer new to an Edmonton audience made her appearance in the person of Hazel Strang-McCardell. She is a gold medalist of the Alberta Musical Festival, when it was held at Lethbridge. During the same year she was awarded a scholarship in the Adlam college of music of Calgary. She holds the advanced certificate for piano-forte and voice of the Royal Academy of Music and distinction in theory. For some time Mrs. Strang-McCardell was also soloist in Knox church Calgary, and also taught in that city. Later she studied under Dalton Baker of the Toronto Conservatory of music and was presented by him in a recital in that city. Mrs. Strang-McCardell has been a resident of Edmonton for about six months, coming here at the beginning of the year. Edmonton Bulletin.

Clareholm, July 16, 1920.

Dear Mr. Editor:—The Chaatunga has come and gone and apart from the entertainment itself, I trust that some of the thoughts and ideas put forward by the different speakers will be of lasting benefit. On Wednesday night I had the pleasure of listening to Mr. Skeithy lecturing on how to make the world a better place to live in, and one of his themes was the mauling of lotteries in our home town, and he of course narrowed his argument down to the individual.

It would seem to me that we here in Clareholm have a wonderful opportunity to follow out his advice, and in this short letter I would like to continue his line of thought and concentrate on one particular individual.

We have here a number of farmers who live in our midst and work their farms from this point, but we have only one of these who do so and pasture their work stock on the streets of the town. It is not necessary to mention his name, everyone knows him, also his stock. I myself, last night about eleven o'clock made a personal acquaintance with eight of his mules running at large on the streets. And the mules are not the only offenders, there are cows—and sometimes bulls—belonging to this man that enjoy the privilege of exploring the neighbors' gardens and lawns during the dark hours of the night.

On Wednesday night last one of this gentleman's cows engaged in a wrestling match with one of the best trees in the new park, with, of course, the tree coming out second best.

Yesterday two of his cows pastured on Third avenue north for several hours, and about four o'clock when the poundkeeper could leave his duties he endeavored to impound these animals—he was on foot—and when he had driven them up to within a few yards of the gate this party rode up on horseback and took them away from him. Of course we have a pound law and for doing as he did yesterday there is a severe penalty provided, but invoking the aid of the law does not in my opinion tend to the elevating ideals as described by Mr. Skeithy. Everything possible has been tried with this particular offender in order to persuade him to mend his ways in this matter, but with out avail, and I am of the opinion that the Council will have to take the most drastic steps to stop the nuisance unless he will take a few minutes to ponder over Mr. Skeithy's advice.

W. C. Miller, Sec.-Treas. Town of Clareholm.

Important Notice to Farmers and Gardeners

The sugar beet webworms have been attacking gardens in many localities. The worms on hatching from the eggs are pale green in color and measure about 1-16 of an inch in length. When about a week old, they appear greyish-black above, and yellow below. Full grown worms are from one inch to 1½ inches in length. The general color is black with white or light colored stripes running the length of the body. The more conspicuous stripes are one on each side of the black band which runs the length of the back and two on each side of the body. In addition to the stripes a number of small circular markings consisting of a white area on the outside, then a black circular band and in the center a white spot, are found on each of the body segments. A small larval base in the central spot. There is a tendency towards darker colors in the second brood of worms. When the worms are full grown they descend into the ground and construct silk-lined earthen cells which are about three times the length of the worm. These are found endwise with the upper end about an inch below the surface of the ground. Within this snug retreat the worm transforms to an inactive pale brown pupa or to a resting form. The pupa form the small moths appear. These are brownish colored moths with a wing expanse of about one inch. The general color is a tawny brown broken by lighter and darker markings which are rather variable in shape and shade.

These moths have been noticed recently in immense numbers in the grass and small bushes. When going through the bushes they rise by the thousands and zigzag away in short rapid flight.

The sugar beet worms will attack all kinds of garden vegetables including beets, cabbage, celery, etc., and sunflowers. They have also been seen to attack Russian thistle, etc.

The Remedy

The most practical method of control is to poison them with Paris green solution made in the following way:

Paris green 1½ lbs
Soap 3 lbs (six bars)
Unslacked lime.....1½ lbs
Water 50 gals.

The soap is used to make the poison spread evenly over smooth leaves such as those of the beet. Unslacked lime is used to destroy any free arsenic that may be in the Paris green and hence to prevent the burning of leaves. If desired, the Paris green can be applied as a dust. It may be mixed with air-slacked lime or flour and shaken from a coarse sack or scattered by means of a powder gun. Used in this way it can be put on at the rate of three pounds per acre. The disadvantages of the dust method as compared with the spraying method are that it gives an uneven distribution of the poison and unless applied after a rain or dew it is readily blown off by the wind.

For further information apply to J. C. Hooper, Principal of the School of Agriculture, Clareholm.

FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1920

The "June rains," like the previous part of this season, came along a month late. But they are here in good time and the ground has received a good soaking.

Hon Arthur Meighen has accepted the premiership of the Dominion. He is a western man, having been elected to parliament from Manitoba. His cabinet will be made up of ten Conservatives, six Liberals and one Laborite.

A new agricultural monthly has been launched at Edmonton. The first number contains articles by some of the best informed writers on agricultural topics. It is a well gotten up, bright, attractive monthly, and has been christened "Agricultural Alberta." It deserves a good reception.

We had hoped to get the paper out as early this week as last; but this proved to be one of those weeks when pretty near everything around the print shop breaks loose on press day. Even the mule, the bull, the cow, and the caterpillar broke loose; and it took a good many hours to put them into type; hence our publication is by that much later than last week.

The Chautauqua closed on Thursday night. Two weeks ago very few expected anything but a complete failure. The splendid rains and changed crop prospects brought optimism to the committee and with that spirit went after the ticket selling, of which they made a splendid success.

By the close of the first day the whole guarantee of $1,500.00 was provided. The single admissions which amounted to $389.84 gave the committee $97.40 to meet their local expenses, so that it is expected that when everything is settled up, there will be a small balance to the good to carry over to next year.

So far as the program is concerned there was little criticism. Generally it was thought to be an improvement over last year. The Junior Chautauqua certainly was better, and the festival that took place on Thursday night was a delight and pleasure both to old and young.

The Chautauqua Company this year left a third of its takings in town. The heavy livery expenses incurred in bringing the artists from Lethbridge was responsible for $275.00 of expenses. Other expenses bring their total up close on $600.00. Evidently there can be no complaint of Chautauqua taking too much money out of the town.

Chautauqua will be here again next year. 85 signers are on the contract. The company guarantees a better program than in this festival season has come to stay, and everyone who enjoyed the delightful series of lectures and entertainments will look forward with utmost pleasure to the Chautauqua of 1921. Fruit Growing on the Prairies

Long before the advent of the wheat grower hundreds of varieties of small fruits grew in the sheltered areas of the great north-west of the American Continent, now known as the Canadian Prairie Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Several varieties of wild currants and berries, of a most delicious flavor, are still found throughout these three provinces, and fruit-picking excursions form one of the most delightful diversions in the life on the farm there. In the woodlands, beside the creeks, lakes and rivers, it does not take long during the season to pick sufficient wild strawberries, raspberries, Saskatoons, red, black and white currants, gooseberries, etc., to keep the family well supplied in preserves until the following season.

Where the wild varieties of fruit grow so profusely it is natural to expect that some, at least, of the cultivated varieties will grow equally well; and this expectation has been realized by hundreds of farmers in Western Canada who have made a hobby of growing small fruits. Their success shows that with reasonable care and attention there is an opportunity to develop fruit raising on the Canadian prairie to a much more than a vacation of a few farmers. It could possibly be developed into an important industry.

Much valuable information concerning varieties of the different kinds of fruit most adaptable to the conditions prevalent on the prairie farm has been gathered by the horticultural departments of the Provincial Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and by the experimental stations scattered throughout the country. At the University of Alberta, at Edmonton, which is more than three hundred miles north of the international boundary, a large number of varieties of currants, raspberries, and strawberries have been grown with conspicuous success for many years. At least a dozen varieties of currants have done well, growing very hardily and giving heavy yields of extremely delicious fruit. Ruby Castle, Red Cherry, Red Dutch and Stewart have proved to be about

(1) Strawberries grown in Alberta.

(2) A fertile strawberry patch, the best of the red kind. White Grape and White Dutch of the white, and the Black Maples, Profits, Victoria and North Star of the black currants. Several varieties of red, black and gold raspberries, particularly the red, have also been grown with success at Edmonton. The Sunbeam and Culbert are the favorite raspberries. Their flavor is fine, they yield heavily, and the former, particularly, ripens very early in the season. The Herbert, Turner, King and Louisa varieties have also been very successful. The Carolina has proved to be the best of the yellow raspberries. Blackberries have not been satisfactory as the red and the yellow at Edmonton, but in other parts of the country they are being grown with more or less success.

Strawberries are quite at home on the Canadian prairie. They are, indeed, the most popular of the small fruits grown in the farm garden. It seems safe to predict that before many seasons have elapsed these luscious berries will be grown and marketed on a commercial scale in many parts of Western Canada. Farmers repaid for what raising and stock raising only. For many years strawberries grown on the De Montauville Farm of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Strathmore, Alberta, were supplied to this company's dining car and hotel services, and their delicious flavor was very highly spoken of.

The growers of strawberries on a commercial scale in this northern territory will have a great advantage. The berries will ripen later than those grown further south, and he will be able to bring them on the market after the supply of berries grown elsewhere has become exhausted. Besides, the flavor of these berries is such that they would be able to hold their own even if there were any competition. From the middle of July until the end of September, and sometimes later, strawberries from the Canadian prairie would be sought on the market.

One of the most interesting surprises prepared for the Prince of Wales during his tour through Canada last year was the presentation of a box of strawberries at Lethbridge, Alberta. These berries were grown by John Hamilton on his farm at Coalville near Lethbridge and were picked in his garden on the morning of the presentation to the Prince's party in October. Fresh strawberries in October are certainly a novelty in the northern hemisphere, but they really are a possibility in Alberta.

Cowboy Life on a Western Ranch

- (1) Guy Weadick, of the T. S. Ranch, Longview, Alberta, Canada.
- (2) Miss Flora Ladue, world's champion lady fancy rider, Mr. Weadick's partner.
- (3) Broncho Buster on T. S. Ranch.

The romance of life among the cowboys on a Western ranch has been depicted so often in the movies that a number of people who go each year to the Canadian Rockies have said: "Why not spend our own vacation this way? Why not take a chance from the first tourist hotels and do the thing in the real western style?" "Tastiest thing in the world," said Guy Weadick, Stage-Manager for many of the great Stampede and Frontier Day Celebrations at Calgary and elsewhere, and to make it safer still he secured for the T. S. Ranch in the foothills of the Rockies, near the ranch recently purchased by the Prince of Wales and in partnership with Miss Flora Ladue, the World's Champion Lady Fancy Rider, he has undertaken to support a few selected parties of those who desire to spend their holidays on a real Western Canadian ranch, where fishing and hunting are plentiful and where the "mountain scenery" is unsurpassed beyond words.

The "T. S." Ranch is situated in the Eden Valley, right at the base of Mt. Head, on the trail that leads to Banff, 60 miles to the north-west, through the Snowy Mountain reservation. Pack outfits are run from the ranch to the beautiful Kananaskis Lakes. Numerous other worth while pack trips can be made from the ranch through the Canadian Rockies.

From the ranch house through the hills it is 11 miles to the B. P. Ranch, the property of J.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Adjoining the T. S. Ranch on the eastern boundary is the famous B. P. Ranch, the property of George Lane, one of the cattle kings of the Northwest, who also enjoys the distinction of being the largest owner of pure bred Percheron horses in the world. Although the town of High River is 16 miles away, and the nearest railroad point on the Canadian Pacific Railroad, there is a good auto trail through the valley from the T. S. Ranch direct to Calgary, the metropolis of Alberta, 60 miles away; the trip can be made by auto in three days.

The mail for the ranch is received at Lacombe P.O., Alberta, and although it is twenty miles from the ranch, the cowboys are always on hand to see that the "mail" is delivered promptly. Once a week during the summer months the boys on the ranch put on excursions of their sports for the pleasure of the visitors. Riding of mounted horses, roping, cowboy games and the various other daredevil stunts dear to the cowboy's heart are included.

Geologists will also find many opportunities for scientific research as the whole formation is of great interest from the Old Man River south of the Grosventre in the clear pools of snow-fed mountain streams.

A special good program at the Rex for Fair dates.

Don't forget the Clareholm Fair, July 29 and 30.

R. K. Peck left on Saturday morning on a business trip to Winnipeg.

David Thomas returned on Thursday from his trip in the north country.

As many members of the Agricultural Association as can do so are requested to come out on next Tuesday and help put the grounds in shape for the Fair.

Good rains again this week fully assure a good crop in this district. Wheat is now out in head and coming on very rapidly. Reports indicate that the rain was general throughout the province.

When you take hail insurance you need a reliable company. Fraser & Peck have the two strongest companies doing business in Alberta. If you are short of cash your note will be accepted. You need the protection.

At the Annual Assembly of the Church of the Nazarene, held at Calgary, Pastor Chas. E. Thomson of Clareholm was appointed to take charge of the Nazarene work in Edmonton. Sunday the 18th of July will be his farewell day over the circuit. Rev. R. S. Senow will take charge of the work by the following Sunday.

THE TREE PLANTING CAR COMING HERE

With the object of encouraging the planting of trees in the west, through the courtesy of the railway companies a special tree planting car, sent out by the Canadian Forestry Association, is making a tour of western Canada, and while in Alberta will stop at High River, Nanton, Clareholm and Macleod on this line. Lectures on tree planting will be given by Mr. Archibald Mitchell, the well known authority on tree planting under Canadian prairie conditions, at each of these points. July 21st is the date announced for Clareholm.

Mr. Mitchell during his entertaining and instructive talks will tell how to establish tree belts and what advantages they bring. The tree planting car is entirely educational in purpose, and is equipped with a motion picture hall. Mr. Mitchell has some excellent movies on the subject of tree planting and these will be shown both at theater, and if it can be arranged, at the theater.

The Canadian Forestry Association is responsible for the whole enterprise, which aims to develop public interest in the value of trees not only to beautify the farm homes, but as a preventive of soil drifting and other damaging effects of prairie winds.

Obituary

Benjamin Mason Doyle died on the 11th day of July 1920, age 79 years.

Mr. Doyle was born in England and was a watchmaker and jeweler by trade. He came to Canada in his thirties and for a number of years worked at his trade in Ontario. About 16 years ago, owing to failing sight, he gave up his business and came west and located on a homestead on the Black Spring Ridge. After proving up he came to Clareholm where he has lived off and on ever since.

He was a great reader, not of light literature but of the heavy and thoughtful type. Deeply religious and of strong convictions. He was generous and kind. Many children in town will long remember the kind old man and his bag of candies. Of late years he has suffered much and no doubt death came to him as a happy release.

The funeral service will be held at the residence on Sunday, July 18, at 3 p.m.

Death of George Bishop

Calgary, July 13.—George Bishop, of 2312 First street north-west, died at the general hospital on Friday evening, at the age of 72 years. Besides his widow he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. G. E. Elliott of Wawanesa, Manitoba; Mrs. Charles Murray, Edmonton; and Mrs. Thomas Little of Innisfail. The deceased was formerly a resident of Innisfail and came to this city only a short time ago. The funeral took place at Harrison & Foster's undertaking parlors on Monday morning at 10:45 o'clock, after which interment took place in the Union cemetery. Rev. Mr. Dalgleish conducted the services.

Mr. Bishop lived in Clareholm for a number of years and later homesteaded here and here and Carmangay. His daughter married Chas. Murray, brother of Frank Murray, who was at the time principal of Clareholm public school.

Mr. Bishop was a member of the Methodist church and was respected by all who knew him.

Canadian and English Hot Springs

Recently the Canadian Pacific Railway film of the tour of the Prince of Wales in Canada, was shown three times a day for three days at Bath, England. The mayor of the town and thousands of the residents of the town and district were exceedingly interested in those pictures, which not only showed the homes of the Royal Highness in the Dominion but also gave vivid details of many of the beautiful scenes of our country.

Those who have visited the hot sulphur springs at Bath in the Canadian Pacific Rockies or the Halcyon Springs on the Arrow Lakes and derived beneficial benefit from them will be glad to learn something about the springs at Bath which are the only hot springs in the United Kingdom.

About the middle of 1713 the old Priory of medieval Abbey, which stood at the south-western corner of the existing Abbey at Bath, was pulled down to give place to a suite of baths for the Duke of Kingston. In removing the foundations, a number of stone coffins were found, and, on existing further, the hot mineral water gushed forth and interrupted the work. The site being drained, Roman masonry was discovered and subsequently a number of baths and aqueducts. That there lay buried still further remains of what must have been an extensive Roman bathing establishment.

The rectangular bath, now commonly known as the Lucan bath, was uncovered, and at either end of it a semi-circular deep bath, entered by seven steps. The side walls lay on the eastern side, together with a number of square baths and other apartments which apparently were used preparatory to entering the hot chambers. Some of these rooms were paved with flag stone, others were beautifully treated with various colored tesserae.

Excavations were not then pursued, other buildings were quickly erected over the site, and during the next hundred years no attention was given to the place.

It was the year 1878 that marked the most important epoch in the re-discovery of the baths. Engineering works were at this time in progress to remedy a leakage from the principal spring from the leakage of the King's Bath, then in private hands, derived the waste of their supply. Interruptions ensued, but the Corporation enforced their rights in respect to the water escaping from the King's Bath, and the draining of the site and other necessary works proceeded.

It was then perceived that the foundations of a number of the modern houses rested upon what was little better than a morass, and Major Davis, to whose unswerving zeal and skilful excavation the city is so much indebted, found, after further exploration, and careful unearthing, beneath the basement of the modern baths, and in 1884 another rectangular bath was excavated.

That the builders of these baths were attracted into the valley by the hot springs about the middle of the first century, certainly not very long after the Romans first occupied Britain, we have fairly conclusive evidence. A coin of Claudius was found in such a position as to suggest to some authorities the theory that it might have been specially placed to commemorate the foundation of the baths. At any rate from the stones and slabs dug up from time to time (one stone bears reference to a definite date A.D. 77-8), and the characteristic of a few of the sculptured remains, some vigorous occupation of Bath can be ascertained with tolerable accuracy, to the last 30 or 40 years of the first century.

Getting the Most Out of the Farm

William Gilbert's Home and Farm at Stony Plain, Alberta.

As a rule a farmer in a new country does not get nearly so much as he might from his farm. Why should he? Land is cheap. If he wants to get larger returns he can easily get more land. So he reasons. He aims, therefore, rather to increase the size of his farm than to increase the output from the land he has.

But will not increase farming pay in a new country? Is it not better for a farmer to double the production of his farm to attain this end? Judging from the success of several hundreds of farmers in various parts of the prairie provinces of Canada—the last part of the North American continent to be developed—where land is so doubt as cheap as anywhere, intensive farming methods have even in a newly developed country, especially if good railway transportation facilities are available. One fine illustration is the case of William Gilbert. His farm at Stony Plain, Alberta, about twenty miles west of Edmonton, is well made to produce to the limit, and yet at the same time is being conserved to the utmost, because the main products—wheat, milk, pork, mutton and wool.

Mr. Gilbert hails from England, where the farmer, as a rule, are considerably smaller than those in Canada or the United States. There he spent his early life, and learned a good deal about the dairying and stock raising businesses. He came to Canada in 1904, taking up a homestead in the West, to which he added another quarter section, so that for some time he was farming three hundred and twenty acres. About five years ago, however, he sold this farm and bought the one he now occupies at Stony Plain, consisting of one hundred and sixty acres. The land was rough, low lying, and had more than seventy acres of it in the back. It was considered more or less worthless, as land is rated in Western Canada. Mr. Gilbert thought something could be done with it, however. And he was right. During the five years it has been in his possession, the proceeds from this land have enabled him to spend more than ten thousand dollars in various kinds of improvements, such as clearing the land, ditching, erecting a silo and barn. The farm is now in such a state that it will carry more stock than some farms four times as large will maintain. In addition to his work here, he has kept as many as three hundred head of milk cows and between one hundred sheep and between twenty and fifty head of cattle at the same time on this farm. His aim has been to intensify as much as possible, raising only the best stock he can obtain.

The National records show that Mr. Gilbert has sold more pure bred Berkshire hogs than any other breeder in Canada. His is the first Alberta breeder to sell a herd head to the United States. He has the whole secret of producing stock of the quality he is breeding to the best. When he started in the hog business he secured the American continued in quest of herd heads and bought the two best sires that he could get in the United States. One is Ames Hival 148, whose half brother is grand champion of the world, and the other was the grand champion of a Kentucky state fair in 1914. The sons and daughters of Ames Hival are to be found on some of the large stock farms in the United States.

William Gilbert has pure bred for commercial profits. The rule that he follows is to feed out pound of grain to every three and a half pounds of milk produced. And this is profitable to give his cows this quantity even with the present high prices of grain. From his experience he concludes that there is no reason for the milk sheds showing a decreased yield during the winter months and he contends that if a cow is given the proper shelter, and feed and water in the right proportions, she will give as much milk when she is in the shed as when she is in the field. One of the biggest problems Mr. Gilbert has had in the past has been to secure enough roughage to properly winter his stock, but he is satisfied that he has solved the problem by the installation of a silo. Last year he built a thirty by fourteen silo, which, including the value of labor cost between $600 and $700 to build, will stand it with great ease. The results so far have been highly satisfactory and he believes that it is one of the best investments that he has ever made.

Other forms of roughage that he depends upon are meadow hay, green fodder, clover hay and roots. He is also using out street corner.
